Published February 11, 2025

Dr. Fredrick has a special interest in youth digital media use and school-based cyberbullying prevention.

We are excited to announce the appointment of Dr. Stephanie Fredrick to our international panel of expert advisors. She joins a number of renowned experts from the fields of research, mental health, gaming, and online safety to help ensure we remain at the forefront of internet safety and wellbeing.

Dr. Fredrick is an Associate Professor of School Psychology and the Associate Director of the Alberti Center for Bullying Abuse Prevention at the University at Buffalo, State University of New York.

schools in preventing bullying, cyberbullying, and promoting youth well-being.

I'm passionate about creating safe, inclusive spaces for young people. Organizations like Cybersmile are vital in supporting youth and their digital wellbeing, and I'm honored to serve on their advisory panel, collaborating to promote this important mission.

Dr. Stephanie Fredrick, Research Advisor, The Cybersmile Foundation

Dr. Fredrick is especially interested in youth digital media use, school-based cyberbullying prevention, and fostering digital citizenship. She has published over 40 peer-reviewed articles and book chapters on topics related to bullying, cyberbullying, and youth mental health and is frequently cited in media interviews on these topics, including Time, The Washington Post, Forbes, and Yahoo! News. She is dedicated to conducting and disseminating research and has provided over 90 workshops and presentations, including both student and parent workshops, for schools, community organizations, and conferences on bullying and cyberbullying prevention.

Dr. Fredrick is a valuable addition to our panel of experts. Her research and ongoing work to understand youth mental health and bullying behaviors will ensure that we continue to lead through science and data when developing services and initiatives.
