

Taher and Myra Razik International Fellowship: Information for 2020–21 Applicants

The Razik Fellowship

The Taher and Myra Razik International Fellowship (Razik Fellowship) at the Graduate School of Education (GSE) of the State University of New York/University at Buffalo (UB) in the United States of America, is funded by private donations from the late Professor Emeritus Taher A. Razik and his wife, Myra Razik, with additional support from UB and GSE.

The Razik Fellowship is competitive and selective. There is one fellowship awarded (approximately) every four years. We are currently accepting applications for the 2020–21 academic year. The candidate selected can commence his/her studies in either the beginning of the fall 2020 semester (August) or the beginning of the spring 2021 semester (January).

In order to qualify for the fellowship, a candidate must be a junior faculty member at a college of education in Egypt. The fellow selected with the agreement of his/her college, takes official leave for up to four years of study in the United States at UB in the GSE Department of Educational Leadership and Policy (ELP) to earn a PhD degree. After completing the doctoral program, the fellow returns to Egypt, either to rejoin the faculty at his/her college or to assume a different leadership position in the education field.

Financial Provisions

The scholar selected for the Razik Fellowship is eligible to receive up to four years of financial support, including:

- Fellowship tuition waiver (university fees and textbooks are not included) to offset the major academic cost of the doctoral coursework
- Fellowship award payments (10 months per year)
- Opportunity to earn a stipend (10 months per year) through part-time work as a graduate assistant (based on availability and awarded on a competitive basis)

The sponsoring university will agree to pay for all transportation costs and the full Egyptian salary of the fellowship recipient while enrolled as a full-time student in GSE. If this is not possible, the recipient will be required to personally pay for all transportation costs incurred by this fellowship. In addition, the fellowship does not directly cover costs for items such as visas, housing, cost of living, health insurance, personal emergencies and family support. It is the responsibility of the fellow to budget and pay for these costs, aided by any support which his/her university in Egypt may provide.

NOTE: The Razik Fellowship fund provides basic financial support for the fellow. The fund provides no support for the fellow's family members or any other person.

ELP Doctoral Programs

The GSE Department of Educational Leadership and Policy offers PhD doctoral programs in three main disciplines:

- Educational Administration
- Educational Culture, Policy and Society (including Comparative and Global Education)
- Higher Education

Details about these ELP doctoral programs are available here.

All ELP doctoral students are expected to study a number of core subjects and then pursue an individual plan of study and research, guided by a faculty academic advisor. The Razik Fellow can expect to work very closely with the advisor and other faculty as his/her study and research interests take shape.

Completion of a doctoral program — coursework, research and dissertation — normally requires a student's full-time effort for four academic years.

Qualifications of Candidates

Potential candidates for the Razik Fellowship should have the following qualifications:

- Be a citizen of Egypt
- Be employed as a junior faculty member at an Egyptian university (college or division of education)
- Be able to take leave from his/her home university in Egypt
- Be eligible for an Egyptian passport and a USA study visa
- Be recommended by a leader at his/her college of education
- Have professional interests and experience related to ELP
- Be proficient in English
- Show prior academic excellence in undergraduate and graduate (master's level) study
- Be able to cover expenses not covered by the fellowship provisions

Further Information

Potential candidates for the Razik Fellowship should send a letter of interest and a curriculum vitae (CV) via e-mail to the Office of Graduate Admission at gse-info@buffalo.edu.

Interviews with qualified candidates via telecommunication will be scheduled as needed.

Final applications will be submitted online (click the Apply Now button for your preferred PhD program) and should include:

- Application form
- Statement of goals and objectives
- Academic grade transcripts (undergraduate and graduate study)
- Test scores: TOEFL (Internet-based minimum score of 79) and GRE or MAT
- Letters of recommendation
- Statement of financial ability